

MISTRIAL DECLARED IN "LOTTERY" TRIAL OF U. S. SENATOR JAMES J. DAVIS; TWO JURORS SAID TO HAVE COMMUNICATED WITH CHIEF DEFENSE COUNSEL MARGIOTTI

Judge Frank J. Coleman in Giving Declaration and Dismissing Jurors, Commends Counsel for Reporting the Matter—Sudden End Comes Like Shot at Opening of Court Today

(By INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE)

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 3.—A mis-trial was declared in the "lottery" trial of United States Senator James J. Davis by Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman today because two jurors communicated with the chief defense counsel, Charles J. Margiotti.

Judge Coleman in dismissing the jurors commended Margiotti for reporting the matter to him. He said he might take up contempt of court proceedings against one or both of the jurors.

The sudden end of the present trial came like a shot as court opened today. The defendant, the former director-general of the Loyal Order of Moose, appeared as much surprised as anyone.

Davis is charged with violating the national lottery laws in connection with two charity balls held for the Moose. The Government charged the former Secretary of Labor profited by $173,000 from the alleged lotteries, but the defendant denied the charge, claiming he was unaware of the details of the two charity balls.

It had been expected that by the middle of this week the trial would have been completed and the former Secretary of Labor would know his fate. If convicted, he faced a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a fine of $28,000.

It was expected that the defendant would be called as his own star witness either tomorrow or Wednesday, International News Service learned. The taking of testimony from Joseph Jenkins, formerly secretary of Davis, and a large number of prominent charity witnesses, was booked for today.

The defendant has been resting over the week-end from a severe attack of illness. He has been suffering from a stomach ailment.

However, the Moose director-general is anxious to take the witness stand as soon as possible, regardless of his physical condition.

The matter of the contract made by Davis in 1928 with the Moose for the exclusive organizing rights of the order will continue to be the main issue in the case when it is resumed today.

Jenkins, who has testified that he and Fred W. Jones, financial agent of Davis, purchased the contract in 1930 from Davis, will face an intensive cross-examination from Assistant U. S. Attorney Louis M. Treadwell.

The Government claims that Davis still holds the contract and that checks passing from the proceeds of the two charity balls, alleged lotteries, to the "organization department," link him with the violation of the Federal laws.

The defense contends that Davis was unaware of the details of the charity balls and that inasmuch as he assigned his contract in August, 1930, he is innocent of the charge.

The act under which they were arrested is applicable only to Pennsylvania drivers and the Trentonians arrested were operating cars bearing Pennsylvania tags.

The crusade will be continued for another week.

CADET CORPS RECEIVES PLAQUE AT BURLINGTON

Local Group Only Junior Corps in Attendance at Tri-State Competitions

DRILL AND PARADE

The Cadet Corps, ward of Robert W. Bracken Post, American Legion, returned from the Tri-State Bugle and Drum Corps competitions at Burlington, N. J., Saturday, bearing a plaque, the gift of the Burlington Chamber of Commerce in appreciation of excellent work at said Legion affair. The plaque, with a silver plate on a background of mahogany, states when and where the gift was given.

The Bristol lads, led by drum major, "Jimmy" Bolton, made a splendid showing at the Legion competitions in the adjoining city Saturday, and gave a splendid demonstration in drilling and bugle and drum corps work, during the afternoon's activities; and likewise paraded with the Legion corps about the streets of Burlington in the evening. The bugle and drum corps of the Bracken post was also in attendance, but did not compete.

First prize in the competitions was awarded to Norwood, Pa., corps; second to Frankford; and third to the New Jersey state champions, Perth Amboy. Prizes were checks for $250, $150 and $50. These were presented after the evening parade when the corps were grouped about the grandstand at Burlington city hall. Mayor Holmes bestowed the gifts, as well as the plaque. The Bristol Cadets were the only representatives of junior corps, being especially invited for the occasion.

It is estimated that approximately 6,000 witnessed the afternoon competitions; while in the evening the number is believed to be well over 30,000 as the parade took place.

Supper was served to the corps in the high school cafeteria. Senior corps came from as far south as Wilmington, Del., and as far north as Perth Amboy.

The "trooping" of the colors, or retreat, was one of the most colorful features of the afternoon. Senator Clifford Powell, New Jersey, acted as officer of the day, he having complete charge of the retreat.

The appearance of the local Cadets in Burlington Saturday led to an invitation to represent the Burlington Fire Company at the celebration marking the 250th anniversary of the founding of Bordentown, N. J., on Saturday next. Again on the 15th the Cadets will go to Bordentown to take part in Bordentown Legion Day activities.

LEAGUE FACES CRISIS

Publication of the Lytton report severely condemning Japan's military adventure in Manchuria precipitated the most serious crisis in the 12 year history of the League of Nations today. If the League accepts the Lytton Commission findings, participated in by the United States, and attempts to act upon them, Japan, in all probability will cancel her membership. If the dominant European powers—Great Britain, France and Italy—attempt to shelve the report to prevent Japan from withdrawing, they will meet bitter opposition from the smaller powers and the ensuing battle may do much to destroy the League's prestige. The Tokyo government served notice today it would ignore the major findings of the Lytton commission; China, on the other hand will accept the report, though disappointed with many of its conclusions.

STILL HELD CAPTIVE

Yingkow, Manchuria, Oct. 3.—Held captive by a bandit chieftain known to his followers as "Incarnation of Evil" and threatened with torture and death, a young English woman and a male companion issued a new appeal for rescue today. The captives, Mrs. Kenneth Pawley, wife of an employee of a petroleum company and Charles Coulran, employed by the same firm were captured by bandits near the Newchwang race course and held for ransom approximating $300,000 and a large supply of guns and ammunition. The latest appeal was sent in an acknowledgment of the receipt of a package containing medicine and food.

TWO UNDER ARREST

Reading, Oct. 3.—Two Philadelphia were in custody of police here today after having been arrested by police while attempting to crack a safe at the Schlechter Jewelry Company, one of Reading's largest jewelry firms. Detectives who investigated the attempted robbery said the two men, Louis Liever, and George Hallett, 29, were about to knock the combination off the safe containing $80,000 in jewelry when a squad of patrolmen poured into the store. Hallett, police said, was released recently from prison. A woman who rented an apartment over the jewelry store is being sought by police. It is thought she aided the men in the attempted robbery. Both men are said to have police records.

THREE MEN FIGURE IN WEEK-END ACCIDENTS

Man Severely Injured When His Car Hits Pole Near Andalusia

IS IN HOSPITAL HERE

Attempting to avoid striking a man riding a motorcycle near Andalusia, Saturday evening, Anthony Scheidler, 3045 Emerald street, Philadelphia, crashed into a pole, and suffered severe and painful injuries.

Scheidler, who is still at Harriman Hospital, where he was taken immediately after the accident, has a contused and lacerated wound of the head requiring six stitches; cut on the ear almost severing that member in which ten stitches were taken; injury to the right hand requiring two stitches; fracture of the clavicle; and injuries to the chest.

Highway Patrol from South Langhorne investigated the accident.

Two Philadelphia were injured shortly after midnight yesterday when they were struck by an automobile as they were walking with four companions along the Lincoln Highway, near South Langhorne. They are: William M. Hipple, 21, of 1559 Church street, and Raymond Mazona, 21, of 1323 Church street. Hipple suffered a fractured leg and Mazona was cut about the face. Both were treated by Dr. Henry Lovett and sent to their homes.

John Madak, of Yardley, driver of the car that struck the men, told Corporal M. B. McAtee that lights of an approaching car temporarily blinded him.

ST. ANN'S DEFEATED; CROYDON A. C. WINS

Bristol Eleven Loses to Cheltenham by Score of 7 to 0

CLOSELY FOUGHT GAME

CHELTENHAM, Oct. 3.—The Bristol St. Ann's eleven opened their football season here yesterday afternoon, losing to the Cheltenham Blue Devils, 7-0 in a very closely fought game.

"Pete" Morrissey's left end run, with the St. Ann's backfield sucked in to the right, provided the winning touchdown in the second quarter. Anderson drop-kicked the extra point. The touchdown was a run of thirty-five yards.

The Bristol team outplayed the winners throughout the second half and were always threatening the Cheltenham goal. Three long forward passes with two minutes remaining to be played put the ball on the home team's ten-yard line in the final session and it looked like a certain score for the Bristolians. However, Cheltenham was equal to the task and took the balls on downs.

"Eddie" Tosti proved the principal ground-gainer for the Bristol club, ripping off several long gains. In the third session, Tosti broke loose on an off-tackle play and raced thirty yards before being thrown out of bounds by the safety man of the resident team. Greco and DiMiddio also gained plenty of yardage for the St. Ann's team.

On the defense, "Moonie" Seneca and Tony Angelo held up wonderfully for the "Saints."

"Pete" Morrissey did most of the gaining for the winners. Most of his runs came around the ends and with his speed, he easily broke away from the St. Ann's tackles.

BUCKS "P-BLAZED OAK" ATTRACTS ATTENTION

Nominated As Penn Memorial by Resident of Narberth

HISTORY IS GIVEN

In the search for Penn Memorials in the form of living trees a most interesting Bucks County specimen has been brought to public attention by H. Calvin Fritsch, Jr., of Narberth. A letter sent to the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin told much about the "P-Blazed Oak" at Wrightstown, Bucks county, which H. Calvin Fritsch, Jr., of Narberth, nominated for membership in the "Ancient and Honorable Order of Penn Trees," not knowing it had been elected a member on July 7. His letter follows:

Sir: There is a fine old oak tree near Wrightstown, known as the P-blazed oak, which will no doubt qualify as one to be listed among the venerable Penn Trees which Dr. Wildman is locating and recording to commemorate the 250th anniversary of William Penn's arrival in America.

This tree is six-tenths of a mile northeast of the Indian Walk Monument of Wrightstown, Bucks county, Pa., and a few hundred feet west of the Taylorsville road. It is a white oak which measures 15 feet, 5 inches in girth 4 1/2 feet from the ground, and has a 90-foot spread of branches. It is on high, dry ground, and the soil is loose clay about 4 feet deep on a bed of red shale rock. On two sides of it there are surface wash-outs 3 feet deep. This tree is estimated to be about 350 years old.

It is on the 113-acre farm formerly known as the Moses Hampton tract, now owned (1932) by Stanley Luff, and which is part of "a piece of land containing 1,200 acres granted and confirmed unto FRANCIS RICHARDSON by patent under the hands of William Markham, Robert Turner, John Goodson and Samuel Carpenter, commissioners of William Penn Proprietary, and under the lesser seal of the said Province, bearing date the 23rd day of March, 1692."

The most interesting part of this locality is that this property is located on the northerly border line between the mouth of Knowles creek and the Chain bridge on the Neshaun, which line runs through the P-blazed oak and the Indian Walk Monument. This line is the northern boundary of the tract which William Penn's commissioners purchased by deed from the Indians on July 15, 1682.

Mrs. Luff, wife of the present owner of the land, remembers when this tree was struck by lightning in 1896, obliterating a large "P" about 20 inches high, which had been carved on the bark many years ago. Her father, B. Frank Doan, then cut another letter "P" on the bark, which now may be seen plainly, 6 inches wide by 8 inches high.

This tree was probably 100 years old when the above mentioned northern boundary line was established by Penn, and is now the only living thing on this line to survive the storms and winds to this day. Within a few miles

OPEN SPIGOT WHEN RAIDERS ARRIVE; FLOOD THE CELLAR

Officers Believe They Were Tricked at the Argonne Inn

ARREST AT OAKFORD

Otto Schwegel Held Under $800 Bail for Further Hearing

County officers and two State Police from the Morrisville Barracks staged two raids Saturday night, making one arrest and obtaining a quantity of alleged intoxicating beverages.

The raiding squad consisted of County Detective Anthony Russo, Constables Crawford and Oliver, and two State Police.

The raiders first visited the store and basement of Otto Schwegel, Oakford. Here the officers found two special tanks equipped for making home brew. One tank had a capacity of 10 gallons and one contained 15 gallons. There were also 4 cases of 12 quarts each of bottled beverage.

Schwegel was taken into custody and brought to the Municipal Building here, where he was given a hearing before Justice of Peace James Laughlin. He was held in $800 bail for a further hearing next Saturday.

Argonne Inn, Warminster Township, was visited by the raiders and here they found a half-barrel of beer on tap. Samples were taken but Mrs. Anna Scarpell, the alleged owner of the place, was not arrested. If the test of the samples shows an illegal alcoholic content then the woman will be taken into custody.

County Detective Russo is of the opinion that the beer at the Argonne was watered. He states that a water line was connected to the coils and by the time he and his associates reached the cellar of the place, the spigot had been opened and the beer was running out on the floor until the whole floor had been covered. He is of the opinion that someone was in the cellar when the raiders "hit" the place and immediately opened the spigot.

EASIER CREDIT

Reports that the national credit situation is improved are substantiated by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and banking conditions in the Middle West.

Demand on the R. F. C. for bank, railroad and insurance loans have dwindled in the last month. Two corporation directors see no more of the dark days of last spring and summer. Middle West banks are advertising their credit facilities to attract loan applications for the first time in many months. Only a short time ago President Hoover found it necessary to appeal to these banks to extend feeder loans to livestock raisers.

Credit conditions in the livestock country are such that R. F. C. loans are no longer necessary, local banks being amply prepared to meet the demands. Let it compete with the banks, the corporation is asking 7 per cent interest on feeder loans.

These turns and trends seem to bear out the view of government and financial leaders that the problems of finance have been solved and the big job remaining is to overcome industrial slackness and its closest of kin, unemployment.

None will dispute for a minute that this easing of the credit situation in the livestock regions is due to rising prices. As long as prices left no margin of profit no banker was going to lend money on hogs and cattle. But as soon as there was a chance of profit for everybody concerned the bank vaults were thrown wide open.

KEY TO THE PAST

Hieroglyphic records found among the remains of a hitherto unknown pre-Aryan civilization in the Indus Valley in Asia may contain the clue to the mystery of Easter Island. Signs and symbols in these new hieroglyphics are identical with characters on the famous tablets from Easter Island off the coast of Chile.

A few scattered similarities in two systems of hieroglyphics might be accidental but the French savant Guillaume de Hevesy has found 130 identical characters, raising question of ethnology and migration.

Easter Island has kept her secret well but science has never given up hope of solving the mystery surrounding the race which once peopled that island and left its mark in the form of those gigantic stones. The key may be found in the Indus Valley.

Excavations in the Indus Valley may have opened the way to a new approach to the whole question of Asian ancestry and, perhaps, to matters bearing on ancient America. Evidence has been found in the past linking Asia and America, so the supposition that the early Easter Islanders and the Indus Valleyites were directly related if not the same people in migration is nothing new.

Archaeology is slowly learning about man's past, thwarting the well-laid conspiracy between nature and time to conceal it from prosperity.

A woman's idea of exercise is jumping at conclusions and running up hills.

There are consolations. The bellhop now thinks a dime a tip instead of an insult.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

TO escape the nagging of a stepmother and the selfishness of her stepsister, Daphne Haines, seventeen and beautiful, leaves home determined to make her own living. She has a difficult time in San Francisco and nearly starves until she encounters Ralph McKevitt, family friend, wealthy and handsome, whom her half-sister, Crystal, has decided to marry for luxury and comfort, rather than love. Ralph soon wins Daphne's affection, and she is exultantly happy until Crystal appears. Crystal uses McKevitt as a "good thing," but spends much time with a debonnaire Bohemian, Avery Woodward, who promises to teach her much of life and love and art. Unhappy because Ralph obviously neglects her now, Daphne moons and dreams until she reduces her efficiency to a point where she loses her position. Ill with humility and fright, she sits in the park. Suddenly she discovers Ralph driving along in a smart roadster. She hails him. He seems enthusiastic over their meeting, and she feels reassured that he still cares for her. She tells him her troubles and he promises to find her a position. Meanwhile Crystal is making more demands on Ralph's time and purse. He is annoyed, but he reasons, Crystal is a helpless type of girl, and he must stand by her. Daphne becomes secretary to a prominent elderly lawyer, who takes a fatherly interest in her. She is overjoyed when he invites her and Ralph to his home. Ralph sends Allan Winters, a friend, in his place. During the journey Allan's attempt at sociability is wasted, for the girl at his side seems unconscious of his presence. Her mind is filled with thoughts of Ralph, whom she adores. The visit is pleasant and Allan Winters proves to be a delightful companion. They play together on the beach like a couple of carefree children.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIV.

IT was a dream day to Daphne. A day that she afterward remembered only vaguely and disjointedly.

Mr. Greely clumping down to the gate with them, helping Daphne into the car with a gallant flourish. "Drive over the grade, Allan, the high road to San Rafael . . . sure it's longer, lad . . . this is a night for long roads, with a good car and a pretty girl, and the full moon . . . hmh! I'm telling you."

And then the long, beautiful drive over the hills, while the orange moon hung like a lantern in the black, star-powdered sky.

Silence . . . breathless . . . throbbing silence . . . Why didn't Allan talk? Why was he so still? Finally she let herself speak of Ralph, and after that the words came rapidly and naturally. She talked on and on. An hour—two hours, perhaps. Time passes quickly when you talk of the one you love.

Allan didn't say much. But she knew he was a sympathetic listener. Wasn't he Ralph's best friend?

Things she had never told anyone before. Things she had hardly acknowledged to herself. Her tongue was flying away with her. . . the darkness, the intimacy of it—they two alone in the woods. "People don't believe in love at first sight any more, I guess. . . It sounds kind of silly to say it, but I loved him the first time I ever saw him, on the football field when I was only a kid. . . And then it was just as though fate brought us together, his coming to see my stepsister, and finding me. . . Do you know what he said, Allan? He said, 'Why, you're beautiful!'—And he must have loved me right then—to think that did you say something, Allan?"

"No—but you are, you know—"

"Are what?"

"Beautiful."

"Me?" Her delighted laughter rippled. "Oh, heavens, no—I'm much too little and black and white . . . it was because he . . . he liked me . . . that he thought I was . . . don't you see?"

"But I think you are beautiful, Daphne."

What was that queer throbbing note in his voice? It frightened her. She shook herself restlessly. She was nervous, imagining things. He was teasing her. . .

She made some laughing answer, and soon she was back to Ralph again. Can you imagine being in love for years with somebody you've never really seen? It sounds foolish. . . I can't explain it exactly. . . He was always so far away on the football field you know, and all the newspaper pictures were different, and then that day that I did meet him face to face I was crying so hard he was all blurred, and—"

They were home before she had half finished her story.

"Home already! Oh, Allan—so soon?—And it's been such a wonderful day. We'll have some more days, all of us together. A four, some, you know, wouldn't you like it, Allan—with Ralph too?"

It was a dream day for Daphne.

cried, shocked by the haggard face the street light showed her. He had the look of one who has suffered cruelly for hours, the glazed eyes, the pinched, pale look about the mouth and nose. All Daphne's tender heart turned to water. "I'm so sorry . . . to think of you driving all that way, and me chattering on and on. Is it a headache, Allan? You aren't sick?"

He smiled at her solicitude. "You're sweet, Daphne, but it isn't anything . . . anything you can help . . ."

Flora McCordle limped into Mrs. Hinkle's kitchen with new shoes on her feet, new gloves on her hands, and a luscious, custard-filled coffee cake, only a little crumbed, in a pasteboard box in her arms.

"Get together girls, we're going to celebrate! Flory's got her first pay check, Glory be to God. . . Have you got enough coffee for a party, Mama Hinkle? Us girls are going to have a treat, yep, a treat on the Herald's new society editor, meaning Flory. A whole week and not fired yet! Will you look at the nuts on that cake? Yum! You cut it, Daphne, and maybe Viola can find enough cups for the gang. I've got to take hont her head, crumbling the coffee cake in her plate.

"Because he was too soused to go with you Sunday? Well, you are a sap, Daphne—fussing over a little thing like that! My God, what do you expect of a fellow like Ralph McKevitt? What kind of a mama's boy do you think he is. Listen, girls—you've got to get over that. You're dealing with a man—not a babe in rompers. You've got to overlook a few things in this life, and you've got to get out and do something if you want to hold a fellow like that."

"Say, if I had a chance with McKevitt, would I drop like a faded rosebud because he was out with another girl? Nix—I'd be up and doing. Gosh, Daphne—ain't he worth making a little effort for?"

Daphne nodded miserably. "Yes—I s-suppose so—but Flora I can't—I don't know—how!"

"She didn't even finish her coffee cake," Mrs. Hinkle said reproachfully, when Daphne had gone, "aber, I won't let it spoil!"

Flora pushed her own plate aside. "Well—she's lucky if this is the only meal she misses fussing over McKevitt. . . poor kid!"

TAR-BRUSH WILL HELP TO GIVE AN EFFECT OF A FINE SUNBURN

Produces A Dusky "Way-Down in Carolina" Effect

By Alice Langelier

PARIS.—A touch of the tar-brush will be applied to all pretty skins for wear with white evening frocks which seem to be holding their own for next winter evenings.

The beauty experts say it can be achieved by a water stain applied lightly with a sponge and then washed off with soap and water next morning. It does not darken the skin permanently. Combined with a powder of the same golden hue, a dusky way-down-in Carolina effect can be obtained by those whose summer sun-brown has not lasted.

Rouge and lipstick with this make-up must be of dark scarlet and diamonds are the most effective jewels to wear.

wear against the nut-brown exotic skin.

For the warm tones of brown so popular for fall and winter, there is a brown mascara and brown salve for the eyes.

When it comes to hair hints, the wind-swept bob and the sausage-roll have apparently been given the death warrant.

There is a new swathed shingle which is a matter of very skillful cutting in order to soften the neckline. The wave is carried right down to the nape of the neck.

Side-partings will be as low as possible, much lower than in the past. And a flat-topped coiffure has no waves either at side, front or back, but finger-curls at the side to soften the lines.

HIGH SCHOOL ELEVEN
LOSES FIRST BATTLE

By Oscar Corn

(H. S. Press Representative)

In their first game of the season the local high school eleven were handed a 21-0 set-back by the Orange and Black eleven of Glassboro, on Friday at Glassboro.

The Cardinal and Gray was greatly outwitted, and Glassboro gained many yards by their bulk. Bristol was often in scoring position but was always stopped by the larger and more experienced opponents. Bristol's indomitable fighting spirit and ability of the line to hold at critical moments, kept the score down.

Niendorf started the game with a mighty kick to the 20-yard line. Glassboro immediately started on a scoring spree but fumbled on Bristol's 30-yard line. After making a first down Bristol was forced to kick. Glassboro received the ball on Bristol's 45-yard line and giving the ball to Lyons twice on end runs advanced the ball to the 8-yard line. Bristol held twice but on the third attempt Lyons scored. Ledon dropped back as if to kick but instead threw a pass to Lyons making the extra point.

Not satisfied with this seven point lead Glassboro again broke into the scoring twilight in the second stanza. Getting the ball on the 50-yard line, they marched down the field to the one-half yard line. Here Bristol held desperately for three downs, forcing their opponents back a yard. But again the "ace," Lyons, scored after diving over a "stonewall." He ran the ball for the extra point.

Cole and Tosti did some good ground gaining but could not score.

The second half opened with Bristol looking like a new team. They were full of pep and spirit. Glassboro kicked to Bristol. Getting the ball on the 30-yard line, Tosti called for end runs and on three plays advanced the ball to Glassboro's 30 yard line. Bad luck now struck Bristol and Cole was tackled while trying to throw a pass for a 15-yard loss. Cole then kicked to the 45-yard line.

Glassboro opened up with an aerial attack and completed many passes. The fourth quarter started with the ball still in Glassboro's possession. Now they advanced the ball to the one-yard line. Again the Bristol line held, charging low and not giving an inch. Three downs and still no gain. On the last down Anzueto fell across the goal line with an inch to spare. Starkhouse drop-kicked the extra point.

With only minutes to go, after an exchange of kicks, Piazza intercepted a pass. Bristol started on a march up the field. Cole threw a pass to Borneice who by wonderful field running, gained 39 yards. At this exciting moment the whistle blew and ended the game.

AFTER SEASON PLAY
STARTED IN YEAR '84

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(INS)—After season play for the top honors in baseball began back in 1884 when the National League accepted a challenge from the American Association, operating then only in the Middle West. These games were first of a series played annually until the American Association disbanded after 1890.

The National League played a split season in 1892, the only time in the history of the league. The first half was captured by Cleveland which won 52 and lost 22. Cleveland won the second half with 53 victories against 23 defeats.

A playoff series of the best 5-out-of-9 resulted and the first game played in Cleveland Oct. 17, 1892, ended in a 0-0 tie being called at the end of the eleventh inning on account of darkness. Boston triumphed in the next five games, 4-3; 3-2; 4-0; 12-7; 8-3.

The first and second place teams in the National League played for the cup donated by William Chase Temple, of Pittsburgh, in 1894. Post season play continued every year for the Temple cup on a best 4 out of 7 basis until 1897, inclusive.

New York beat Baltimore 4 straight games, the first year; Cleveland defeated Baltimore, 4 games to 1 in 1895; Baltimore stopped Cleveland, in four straight games in 1896 and the last year of play for the cup Baltimore conquered Boston, 4 games to 1.

When the American League was formed in 1900 war reigned with the National until 1903 when peace finally was declared.

The conclusion of the 1903 season saw Pittsburgh, winner of the National flag, exchanging challenges with Boston, winner of the American pennant. The result of that challenge was the first of the modern world's series.

Neither one of the leagues made any attempt to control the series. Instead the two clubs arranged all the details and rules. Eight games were played, Boston winning five and Pittsburgh three. Attendance was reported at about 100,429 and the receipts "somewhere near $50,000."

In 1904 the New York Nationals and Boston Americans won pennants. The New Yorkers turned down a challenge made by the Bostonians, claiming it would not accept the defiance because it did not regard the Americans as a major league.

The following year brought about the first step taken to put the post season games under control of the leagues. Before the 1905 season was concluded both circuits agreed on a post season series, to be governed by rules laid down by the National Commission.

Practically the same rules govern the fall classic today. It was stipulated that the series was to be "best-4-out-of-7" basis which rule was operative until 1919. In 1919-1920 and 1921 it was "5-out-of-9" but then was changed back to "4-out-of-7" in 1922.

In the 28 series played from 1903 to 1931, inclusive, the American League has won 17 and the National 11.

STATE NEWS

LANCASTER.—A street parade 3½ miles long will be the stellar attraction of the fifty-third annual convention of the State Firemen's Association here October 4, 5, and 6.

Chief Frank Dean, of the Lancaster Fire Department and head of the state organization, said more than 6,000 men and women will march in the mammoth demonstration.

Fire-fighting equipment from all sections of the state will appear in the long column.

GETTYSBURG.—The home of Dr. Charles H. Huber, headmaster at Gettysburg Academy, was threatened by fire. His wife discovered the blaze while he was addressing the student body at chapel service.

Doctor Huber dismissed chapel, asking the students to help fight the fire. The blaze spread despite the efforts of the volunteers, but with the additional aid of firemen who soon arrived the flames were extinguished. Damage was not very serious.

Bucks "P-Blazed Oak"

Attracts Attention

of the Delaware, it was close to Washington's Headquarters, at the Keith House, and to those of his generals in that vicinity, together with the camps of the Continental Army in December, 1777, near Washington's Crossing, just previous to the Battle of Trenton.

I am enclosing photographs of the P-blazed oak, on one of which the letter "P" may be plainly seen. Fortunately they were taken last March before the trees were in leaf. The underbrush is so dense that a clear view of the tree itself cannot now be secured. On the photograph note the heavy scar left by the stroke of lightning.

The following is a copy of the inscription on a tablet at "Gray Stones," in Morrisville, Pa:

NEAR THIS SPOT THE WHITE OAK TREE THAT MARKED THE STARTING POINT OF THE SURVEY OF THE FIRST TRACT OF LAND PURCHASED BY THE INDIANS BY WILLIAM PENN JULY 15 1682 ON LAND IN THE TENURE OF JOHN WOOD AND BY HIM CALLED GRAY STONES OVER AGAINST THE FALLS OF THE DELAWARE COMPRISING ALL THE LAND LYING BETWEEN THE RIVER DELAWARE AND NESHEAMINY CREEK SOUTH OF A LINE DRAWN FROM THE RIVER AT A POINT NEAR THE SAID NESHEAMINY CREEK THIS LINE BEING THE STARTING POINT OF THE INDIAN WALK OF 1737 ERECTED AND DEDICATED JULY 4 1929 BY THE BUCKS COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY AND CITIZENS OF THIS VICINITY

It would be fine if the Welcome Society, of which the writer is a member, would place a suitable tablet this year at this living monument to perpetuate the memory of William Penn, the illustrious proprietor of this Colonial province, who introduced those liberal and basic laws which eventually were embraced in the Constitution of our Republic.

The enclosed map will more clearly show the historical line and location of the tree.

When you are through with the data enclosed, kindly forward to Dr. William Wildman for his consideration, and extend to him my kindest regards and deep appreciation of his enterprise in recording our big trees. I hope to check them up again for him 50 years from now.—H. CALVIN FRUTSCH, JR.

Cub Outfielders

By HARDIN BURNLEY

THE rival outfielders of the Yanks and Cubs, now in the throes of world series play, are pretty nearly on a par as far as effectiveness and clout as ball go. The Yanks may show a bit heavier punch, but to the swatting of the Great Bambino, but this is offset somewhat by the speed and great defensive skill of "Kiki" Cuyler, who is patrolling right field for the Cubs.

Thus the Chicago team is conceding little to the Yanks in the matter of strength in the outer garden. Each club boasts two outfield veterans who have had world series experience, Ruth and Combs for the Yanks and Cuyler and Stephenson for the Cubs.

Cuyler, undoubtedly one of the greatest outfielders of the game, started this season with the Cubs in slow motion. But he came down the home stretch like a forest fire in a gale. Early in the season he suffered an injury to his foot and as a result his batting average fell below .300 for the first time in his major league career. But in that dash for the pennant the fleet-footed "Kiki" made a habit of producing the big clean-up wallop just when the Brums needed it most. In the last six weeks of the race he regained his batting stride and walloped the pill for a mark well over .300.

The brilliant play of Riggs Stephenson, veteran Cub outfielder, this season completely nonplussed those critics who had already prepared his baseball obituary. Last year the veteran spent a good deal of his time on the bench because his legs bothered him, and of course the boys thought that he was through. But Riggs fooled 'em. He got back into the game and all through the season he was the big gun of the Cubs' batting attack. His average for the season was .326. Quite some hitting for a chap who had been relegated to the has-been group.

In Johnny Moore, who patrols the center garden, the Cubs have a youngster whose speed and defensive ability is almost on a par with that of his playing mate Cuyler. And in addition the youngster has been hitting the ball at a .300 clip. He joined the Cubs last spring, having been recalled from Los Angeles, where for two successive seasons his batting average registered above the .340 mark. In fact, last year his average was .366.

Quite a trio, and their work was in good part responsible for the Cubs' winning the National League flag.

"A more pleasing Taste and Aroma"Enough Turkish... but not too much

You can smoke pack after pack of Chesterfields...and never grow tired of the taste. That's partly because Chesterfield uses just the right amount of Turkish tobacco to "season" the mild, sweet Domestic tobacco.

Too much Turkish makes a heavy-smoking cigarette... too little takes something away from taste and aroma. Just enough of the right kinds of Turkish tobacco—that's one reason why Chesterfields SATISFY!
